

What do you pray for? As you look at your life — your family, your career, your goals ... What are the things you ask God for? What matters enough to pray about? And what if someone else's prayer disagrees with yours? What if you have no idea how or what to pray for what's weighing on you? Is there a way to know God's perspective on what you're praying about?

- Open with prayer.
- If your groups is new, give everyone time to introduce themselves.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

- How would you describe your current prayer life?
- Paul prayed that his readers would know God better. What does knowing God involve? How can we know God better?
- Do you tend to pray for the physical needs of those around you, or the spiritual condition of their hearts?
- What are some ways that we can learn to pray beyond our physical needs?
- What does transformational prayer look like?
- Paul prays in verse 18-19 that we would have “the eyes of your heart enlightened, that you may know” three things. What are those three things? What do they each mean?
- How can we incorporate these three things into our daily prayer life?
- How do these verses apply to your life? What will you do about it?

PRAISE & PRAYER POINTS
