Our family was part of a large online community of families in Ottawa that met the needs of those in our neighbourhood. When we moved back to Calgary in December, God impressed on my heart to start a similar Facebook group in Calgary. It's my passion to see people take that step to reach out into their spheres of influence to impact others.

"Calgary Community Connections" aims to meet the needs of our neighbours, coworkers, and those we connect with in our day to day activities. This Facebook group is much more than just the exchange of free items. It's an opportunity to engage our community, to be the hands and feet of Jesus in our broken world.

About a week after "Calgary Community Connections" launched, I learned of a new Syrian Canadian family looking for volunteers to sit with their baby who had been admitted into the Children's Hospital. His mother just underwent emergency surgery and his father was at home with the other three children. A couple of other group members and I and some other Calgarians took turns sitting with the little boy in his hospital room for over 4 days. It was a tangible, rather easy way to meet a very urgent need in our community.

Join us! You never know what impact you might have. Scan the QR code above to visit the Facebook group.

Art Exhibit

Along the stairs on Main Street you'll notice a visual art exhibit called Stations in the Street by painter Scott Erickson. It's an interpretation of the stations of the cross, a centuries-old tradition started by Christians retracing the steps of Jesus on his way to Calvary. Our hope is that it helps prepare our hearts for Easter.
